

THE MONTFORT ACADEMY

What High School Is Meant To Be

What Parents Like about Montfort (2019 parent survey, answers provided anonymously)

- I love the fact that my son feels so comfortable there. Montfort is truly his second family. I also love the communication with the teachers to update me on his struggles or accomplishments. I truly feel blessed that we are a part of the Montfort family.
- We love that Montfort cares about our children and treats us like family.
- We love the strong Catholic foundation that is the base of all that Montfort does. We want our children to succeed in this world, but we most want our children to know that true success is measured by how well we each unite our wills to the will of God. We believe the Montfort Academy will help our children get into a great college. However, more importantly we believe The Montfort Academy will help them in attaining the Eternal Reward of going to Heaven.
- That it has lived up to our expectations, that our daughter has acclimated so well, is doing great academically and has made several good friends. She has been exposed to people, ideas and experiences that are helping her to mature, to think independently and to take her academic career seriously. We have also enjoyed several of the school events and meeting many parents, making us feel like we are part of a small, but very special community.
- The nurturing and academic environment
- Socratic method.
- It's commitment to its students
- I love the morals and religion of Montfort.
- The small school community. Academically students are not held back. Students feel challenged in coursework. Also, enjoy all activities that are available for students.
- Small size; family style events;
- The Montfort Academy provides an atmosphere where students learn how to think, speak and advocate for themselves.
- Focus on the practice of honorable behavior
- The focus on the spiritual formation of the whole person (mind, body, and spirit).
- Montfort is definitely a nurturing and welcoming place. Both Mr. Greco and Col. Petrillo set a firm and very positive example for the students. I believe that they are held in high regard by parents and students alike.
- I love that the students attend mass regularly
- I love the small class size and the diversity of children. The classical teaching gives the children a better understanding of what it is they are being taught. It allows them to explain their view as well as hear the view of their peers.
- We love the focus on religious/character formation and the curriculum. The students really seem to enjoy the rapport they have with their teachers.
- The mission is unique - authentically Catholic with a serious attempt at introducing students to the Great Books tradition and to critical thinking in that tradition. From a mission standpoint, it is unrivaled in the New York area. The Montfort Academy has provided an atmosphere of academic excellence and encouraged my son's growth in the faith. It is an incredible place with incredible teachers.
